“And plenteous funeral tears have washed
The red stains from each brow,
And the proud forms, by battle gashed,
Are free from anguish now.”

FIFTY-EIGHTH REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER INFANTRY

THREE YEARS

The 58th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. the Third Veteran Regiment, was organized at Readville, Mass., the first eight companies being mustered into the service between Jan. 14 and April 18, 1864. The conditions of enlistment were the same as those in the other veteran regiments. The regiment, consisting at this time of only eight companies, the organization of Companies "I" and "K" not having yet been completed, left the State April 28, 1864, under the command of Lieut. Col. John C. Whiton, formerly lieutenant colonel of the 43d Regt. Mass. Vol. Mil., and reached Alexandria, Va., Saturday, April 30. Here it took train May 2 for Bristoe Station, arriving that evening. At Bristoe it was assigned to Bliss' (1st) Brigade, Potter's (2d) Division, Burnside's (9th) Corps, the 36th Massachusetts being in the same brigade.

On May 4 the forward movement of the Army of the Potomac and of the 9th Corps began. That night the 58th reached a position near the Rappahannock River and there bivouacked. The following day it crossed this river and marched to and crossed the Rapidan at Germanna Ford, the sounds of the battle which began that day continually increasing as they advanced. On the forenoon of May 6 the 2d and 3d Divisions of the 9th Corps went into action in the woods south of the Wilderness Tavern, attempting to close the gap between the right of the 2d and the left of the 5th Corps. In the afternoon, on the banks of a swampy ravine, the 58th was heavily engaged, losing seven killed, 23 wounded, and four missing.

Following the flank movement to Spottsylvania, on the 12th of May the regiment joined in an assault on Hill's Corps, meeting stubborn resistance, and losing 13 killed, 90 wounded, and two missing. Among the killed were Captain Harley and Adjutant Ogden. In further skirmishing near Spottsylvania the regiment lost three killed and six wounded.

At the North Anna River, May 24, the 58th was not heavily engaged, and in the fighting near the Totopotomoy about the last of the month but slight loss was suffered by the regiment. On the morning of June 3, 1864, the 9th Corps being on the right, near Bethesda Church, the 58th joined in the general assault, losing 18 killed and 67 wounded. Among the dead were Maj. Barnabas Ewer, Capt. Charles M. Upham, and Capt. Thomas McFarland. From this time until the 12th the regiment lost two killed, 12 wounded, and 16 missing. While the Cold Harbor operations were in progress, the regiment was joined by its ninth company, "I", the muster in of which was not completed until May 13.

Crossing the James River, June 15, on the 17th the 58th joined in the assault on the lines east of Petersburg, losing two killed, 22 wounded, and one missing. Between this time and July 30 it was engaged in trench duty, losing five killed and nine wounded.

On July 30 came the battle of the "Crater" near Petersburg. The tunnel under the salient had been made by soldiers of the 48th Pennsylvania which was in the same brigade with the 58th Massachusetts. The 58th was one of the regiments which charged into the "Crater" and beyond it, but was later driven back, losing Lieutenant Granet and four men killed, 30 wounded, and 84 prisoners. After this fight it remained in the trenches until the latter part of September.

FIFTY-NINTH REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER INFANTRY

THREE YEARS

The 59th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf., the Fourth Veteran Regiment, was the last of the four units composed of men a majority of whom had had at least nine months' service. Like the others, it was recruited during the winter of 1863-64. Its first commander, Col. Jacob P. Gould, had formerly been major of the 13th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. The companies were mustered on various dates between Dec. 5, 1863, and April. 21, 1864. On the 26th of April, the regiment left the State, arriving at Washington City two days later. After two or three days spent in the vicinity of Alexandria, Va., on May 2, the regiment entrained for Bealeton Station on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. Thence it marched to Rappahannock Station where it bivouacked until May 4. On this day it advanced to Brandy Station, and on the 5th marched to Germanna Ford on the Rapidan River. Here it was assigned to Carruth's (1st) Brigade, Stevenson's (1st) Division, Burnside's (9th) Corps.

On May 6, only ten days after the regiment left Massachusetts, it was engaged in the battle of the Wilderness, in the vicinity of the Plank road, losing 12 killed, 27 wounded, and five missing. Colonel Gould being seriously ill, Lieut. Colonel Hodges now took command of the regiment.

Joining in the flank movement to Spottsylvania, the 57th was heavily engaged on the Union left, May 12, losing 11 killed, 45 wounded, and three missing, among the killed being 1st Lieutenant George J. Morse. Moving now to the North Anna, the 59th crossed at Quarles' Mill, May 24, and advanced toward Ox Ford, becoming sharply engaged and losing two killed, 20 wounded, and 16 missing. Among the killed was 1st Lieut. George C. Burrill.

At Cold Harbor, near Bethesda Church, June 3, the 59th lost two killed, 15 wounded, and about the same number captured or missing. Crossing the James River, June 15, and advancing to the front on the 17th, on the afternoon of that day the regiment joined in the assault made by the 1st Division, losing 13 killed, 49 wounded, and eight missing. Among the mortally wounded was Capt. Samuel A. Bean.

Six weeks later, July 30, 1864, the 59th was engaged in the "Crater" fight, near Petersburg, losing eight killed, 25 wounded, and 47 prisoners. Here Lieut. Colonel Hodges and 1st Lieut. Dunlap were killed. After this disastrous experience the regiment remained in the trenches until the movement to the Weldon Railroad in August. Here, on the 19th, an action took place in which only a portion of the regiment was engaged, but a serious loss was incurred in the death of Adjutant Warren who was mortally wounded and died of his injuries the same day. A few days after this engagement Colonel Gould was mortally wounded while in command of a brigade.

The 59th remained in camp near the Weldon Railroad until the last of September when it joined in the movement to Poplar Grove Church. Here, on Sept. 30, the regiment lost one killed, eight wounded, and two missing. Not far from this field the 59th went into winter quarters, but was soon ordered to the right of the Petersburg lines near Forts Haskell and Stedman. In February, Lieut. Colonel Colburn, who had commanded the regiment since August, resigned, and after that time Major Ezra P. Gould was senior officer of the command.

In the battle at Fort Stedman, March 25, 1865, the 59th was engaged near Battery XI on the left of the fort and narrowly escaped capture. From this time until the evacuation of Petersburg the regiment lay between Battery XI and Fort Stedman. On April 3, it entered the city of Petersburg, then did duty for over a fortnight guarding the South-side Railroad. About May 1, the 59th was ordered to Washington, and was stationed first at Alexandria and later at Tenallytown. Here, June 20, 1865, the remnant of the 59th was transferred to the 57th, the transfer to be effective as of June 1, and the officers and men were mustered out as a part of that regiment, July 30, 1865. At Readville, Mass., August 9, 1865, the men were paid off and discharged.

SIXTIETH REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA (INFANTRY)

ONE HUNDRED DAYS

The 60th Regt. Mass. Vol. Mil. was one of the five militia regiments organized in the summer of 1864 for one hundred days service. The other four regiments, the 5th, 6th, 8th, and 42d, were already recognized units of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, the 60th being the only newly organized regimental unit in this series.

These regiments were employed during the late summer and fall of 1864 for guard and garrison duty in various places, thus releasing older and more experienced troops for service at the front.

The 60th was organized at Camp Meigs, Readville, Mass. Ansel D. Wass, who had had honorable service as an officer in the 6th Massachusetts, 3 months, the 19th Massachusetts, and the 3d Massachusetts Cavalry, and had been three times wounded, was made colonel of this regiment.

Under command of Lieut. Colonel Woodward, the 60th left for its field of duty August 1, 1864, arriving at Baltimore, Md., the following day. Here it was joined by Colonel Wass, who had just been mustered out as lieutenant colonel of the 19th Regiment. After a week spent at Relay House, and another at Carroll Hill, near the city, the regiment was ordered to Indianapolis, Ind., where danger was apprehended from disloyal secret organizations. It was quartered first at Camp Carrington and later at Burnside Barracks. While here, among other duties it furnished details to guard a stockade containing 5000 Confederate prisoners.

The 60th remained in or near Indianapolis during the remainder of its term of service, being mustered out Nov. 30, 1864. Before leaving Indianapolis Colonel Wass received from Governor Morton of Indiana a letter commending the regiment for its good deportment and efficient service.

SIXTY-FIRST REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER INFANTRY

ONE YEAR

The 61st Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. was the last Massachusetts infantry regiment to be sent to the front. Recruiting began in August, 1864, the rendezvous being at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor. By the last of September the first five companies had been mustered in, and on Oct. 7 they left the State under command of Lieut. Col. Charles F. Walcott, formerly a captain in the 21st Regiment, who had been severely wounded at Antietam. Five days later this battalion reached City Point, Va., after a stormy passage, and was there assigned to the Engineer Brigade commanded by General Benham. As a part of this brigade the 61st was stationed in the defenses of City Point most of the winter. Twice it was sent to the front, once in the middle of December, when for a short time it was employed on the lines just at the right of Fort Sedgwick, and again early in February, when it participated in the movement to Hatcher's Run. No loss was incurred in these activities.

The remaining five companies were forwarded to City Point as their organization was completed, the last, Companies "I" and "K", not arriving until the middle of March, 1865. Soon after their arrival the 61st was transferred from the Engineer Brigade to Collis' Independent Brigade, and on the 2d of April was moved up to the front lines near Fort Sedgwick. About 2 P.M. the regiment was ordered to advance and capture a line of breastworks on the left of the Jerusalem Plank road, a part of the outer works of Fort Mahone. This line was taken in a spirited charge and stubbornly held, the Confederate fire being kept up until midnight. About 2.30 A.M. on the 3d a reconnaissance made by Lieut. Henry W. Howard and twenty-five skirmishers revealed the fact that the enemy had abandoned the works in that vicinity. About daybreak the regiment entered the city of Petersburg. In this assault on April 2 the regiment lost 2d Lieut. Thomas B. Hart and four men killed, and 30 wounded, two of these mortally.

For gallant and meritorious service in this action nine officers were recommended for promotion by brevet, Colonel Walcott, Lieutenant Colonel Stone, Major Dodge, First Lieutenants Vaughan, Gragg, Howard, Johns, and Morrill, and Second Lieutenant Palmer.

The 61st on entering Petersburg applied itself to the work of extinguishing the fire which was consuming Campbell's Bridge over the Appomattox, but before noon was ordered to return to its station at City Point.

About the 12th of April the regiment was in temporary charge of several thousand prisoners who had been captured with General Ewell at Sailor's Creek on the 6th. On the 16th the 61st was sent to Burkeville on the Southside Railroad arriving on the 20th. Here the Independent Brigade was broken up, the 61st Regiment being assigned to the 1st Brigade, 2d Division, 5th Corps. On May 1 the regiment began its march to Washington, arriving May 12 and going into camp near Fort Barnard. On the 23d it took part in the grand review of the Army of the Potomac in Washington city. Companies "A", "B", "C", "D", and "E", which had been the first to enter the service, were mustered out June 4, and on the following day started for home. Arriving at Readville, Mass., June 8, on the 17th the men were paid off and discharged.

The other five companies were retained in the vicinity of the city of Washington until July 16, when they too were mustered out, and four days later entrained for Massachusetts, arriving at Readville, July 22. Here on the 1st day of August they too were paid off and discharged.

SIXTY-SECOND REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER INFANTRY

ONE YEAR

The 62d Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. was in process of organization when the news was received of the surrender of the Army of Northern Virginia. Its rendezvous was at Camp Meigs, Readville, and recruits began to gather in March, 1865.

Ansel D. Wass, who had had an honorable career as an officer in the 6th Mass. Mil. 3 months, the 19th Mass. Inf., the 3d Mass. Cav., and the 60th Mass. Mil. 100 days, and had been three times wounded in action, was appointed colonel of the 62d, and I. Harris Hooper, formerly major of the 15th Mass. Inf., who had been twice wounded, was named to be lieutenant colonel, but neither of these officers were ever mustered, as the regimental organization was never completed.

Four companies, "A", "B", "C", and "D", including about 400 officers and men, were completed and their members mustered in during the latter part of March and through the month of April. These companies remained in camp until after the surrender of Johnston's Army in North Carolina and the complete collapse of the Confederacy, when they were mustered out of the service, May 5, 1865.

UNATTACHED COMPANIES MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA (INFANTRY)

NINETY DAYS

Thirteen companies of Massachusetts militia were called out and mustered into the United States service during April and May, 1864, to do guard and garrison duty at forts and military posts on or near the eastern coast of the State for the period of ninety days. Eight of these companies had been raised and organized as units of the Independent Division of Militia, a home guard division, authorized by Chapter 243 of the Acts of 1863, while the remaining five, as the schedule below will show, were detached from already existing regiments of Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. A complete list of these ninety day companies, with the number, origin, name of commanding officer, and station of each is here given.

		STATIONED AT
1st — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. Lewis J. Bird,	Fort Independence.
2d — Co. E, 8th Regt., M.V.M.	Capt. Francis E. Porter,	Gloucester.
3d — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. Luther Dame,	Fort Pickering, Salem.
4th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. Alpheus J. Hillbourn,	Clark's Point, New Bedford.
5th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. David H. Dyer,	Beach-street Barracks, Boston.
6th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. Charles P. Winslow,	Camp Meigs, Readville.
7th — Co. G, 42d Regt., M.V.M.	Capt. Albert E. Proctor,	Galloup's Island.
8th — Co. I, 6th Regt., M.V.M.	Capt. Augustine L. Hamilton,	Galloup's Island.
9th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. George H. Smith,	Galloup's Island.
10th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. George A. Perry,	Fort Warren.
11th — Co. I. 8th Regt., M.V.M.	Capt. Jeremiah C. Bacheller,	Gloucester.
12th — Co. of Infantry, I.D.M.	Capt. Charles F. Walcott,	Provincetown.
13th — Co. A. 50th Regt., M.V.M.	Capt. Robert W. Reeves,	Clark's Point, Gloucester.

These companies were mustered out of the service in August, 1864, and their stations occupied in many cases by unattached companies recruited for one hundred days.

UNATTACHED COMPANIES MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA (INFANTRY)

ONE HUNDRED DAYS

Nine companies of Massachusetts militia were recruited up to the minimum standard and mustered into the United States service in July and August, 1864, for one hundred days, to take the places of the ninety days companies whose terms of enlistment were to expire in August. Six of these companies had for their nuclei companies belonging to existing regiments of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, one, the 21st, was a unit of the Independent Division of Militia, while two, the 16th and 19th, were new companies.

The 16th was raised largely in East Boston by John F. Croft, under Special Order No. 694, dated July 8, 1864, and the 19th was raised in Milford and vicinity by Dixwell H. Clark, under Special Order No. 713, dated July 12, 1864.

A list of these companies, with the number, origin, name of commanding officer, and station of each, appears below.

2d — Co. E, 8th Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. Francis E. Porter, Gloucester.
15th — Co. E, 3d Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. Isaac A. Jennings, Fort Warren.
16th — New Company	Capt. John F. Croft, Galloup's Island.
17th — Co. K, 7th Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. John G. Barnes, Fort Pickering, Salem.
18th — Co. H, 3d Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. Otis A. Baker, Galloup's Island.
19th — New Company	Capt. James M. Mason, Fort Warren.
20th — Co. E, 4th Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. Lewis Soule, Fort Sewall, Marblehead.
21st — Co. of Infantry I. D. M.	Capt. David H. Dyer, Provincetown.
22d — Co. A, 3d Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. John W. Marble, Camp Meigs, Readville.
23d — Co. I, 3d Regt. M. V. M.	Capt. Jabez M. Lyle, Camp Meigs, Readville.

These one hundred days companies were mustered out in November, 1864, and their places taken in most cases by unattached companies enlisted for one year.

UNATTACHED COMPANIES MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA (INFANTRY)

ONE YEAR

When the terms of service of the one hundred days companies were drawing to a close General Order No. 40 was issued from the Adjutant General's office, dated October 21, 1864, the following being the text of the order :

"Commanding Officers of Companies of One Hundred Days Troops belonging to Massachusetts, now doing Garrison duty at the Forts on the Coast, are hereby authorized to re-enlist their commands for One Year's service, unless sooner discharged, for said Garrison duty. The Companies will be filled to the maximum by new enlistments, to take the place of those who refuse to re-enlist."

In response to this order six of the one hundred days companies were recruited up to the minimum standard and re-mustered for one year's service during November and December, 1864, and four new companies were enlisted for the same period, many of the recruits having served in unattached companies, one hundred days or in one hundred days regiments. In fact, the 27th Unattached Company, One Year, might be said to have been a reorganization of Co. "C", 8th Regiment, One Hundred Days. The 24th, 25th, 26th, and most of the men of the 27th Companies were mustered into the United States service during the month of December, 1864.

A schedule of the one year companies appears below.

2d (100 Days, re-enlisted)	Capt. Leonard G. Dennis,	Eastern Point, Gloucester.
17th (100 Days, re-enlisted)	Capt. John G. Barnes,	Fort Pickering, Salem.
18th (100 Days, re-enlisted)	Capt. Otis A. Baker,	Camp Meigs, Readville.

THIRD BATTALION OF RIFLES, MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

THREE MONTHS

The 3d Battalion of Rifles, Mass. Vol. Mil., was a unit of three companies commanded by Major Charles Devens, Jr., with headquarters at Worcester, Mass. Companies "A" and "C" were from Worcester, while Company "B" was from Holden.

By Special Order No. 31, dated April 18, 1861, these three companies were ordered to muster forthwith at Worcester, and Major Devens was directed to take them by the most practicable route to Washington, D. C. Obedient to instructions, at 5 p.m., April 20, Major Devens' command was paraded before the City Hall, Worcester, and that night at 10.30 entrained for New York, arriving on Sunday morning, April 21. Sunday night it embarked on the transport ARIEL for Annapolis, Md., arriving on the 24th. Here it remained until May 2, when its destination was changed, and it embarked for Fort McHenry near Baltimore.

Meanwhile another company, which had been recently raised in Boston, under the command of Captain Albert Dodd, was ordered to join the battalion at Washington, its original destination. Embarking on the steamer CAMBRIDGE this company left Boston, May 2, and reached Washington without event. After ten or twelve days in the capital city it was sent to Fort McHenry to join the battalion, arriving at its destination May 15. Here on the 19th of May the entire battalion was mustered into the United States service, Captain Dodd's command becoming Company "D".

The battalion spent its entire term of service at or in the vicinity of Fort McHenry, doing guard and garrison duty, dismounting and remounting heavy guns, etc. About the 11th of July Major Devens left the battalion to return to Massachusetts, he having been promoted to the colonelcy of the 15th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. Captain A. B. R. Sprague of Co. "A" was now promoted to major and under his command the battalion completed its term of service.

On July 30 the companies entrained for home, arriving at Worcester on the morning of August 2. That same afternoon Companies "A", "B", and "C" escorted Company "D" to the Foster Street Depot where it entrained for Boston. On the following day all four of the companies were mustered out of the United States service, Companies "A", "B", and "C" in Worcester and Company "D" at Boston.

BOSTON CADETS, MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

SALEM CADETS, MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

FOURTH BATTALION OF INFANTRY, MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

The entry into the service of these three units of Massachusetts Volunteer Militia is closely associated with "the great scare" so called, caused by the defeat of General Banks' force in the Shenandoah Valley, on the 24th and 25th of May, 1862, by the Confederates under Stonewall Jackson.

At a late hour on the 25th two telegrams were received from Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War, the text of which is here given :

"Send all the troops forward that you can, immediately. Banks is completely routed. The enemy are, in large force, advancing on Harper's Ferry."

"Intelligence from various quarters leaves no doubt that the enemy, in great force, are advancing on Washington. You will please organize and forward immediately all the volunteer and militia force in your State."

In response to these telegrams, on the morning of May 26, General Order No. 13 was issued from the office of the Adjutant General directing that the battalion of six companies stationed at Fort Warren should be raised immediately to a regiment and placed under command of Major Francis J. Parker as Colonel.

On the day following that on which this order was issued these six companies, which were to be thereafter known as the 32d Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf., were on their way to Washington. The departure of these companies left Fort Warren practically without a garrison.

On this same 26th day of May Special Order No. 94 was issued directing the Companies of Cadets of the First and Second Divisions, the Boston and Salem Cadets so called, commanded respectively by Lieutenant Colonel Christopher C. Holmes and Major John Louis Marks, to report forthwith to Colonel Dimmick (Dimick), U. S. A., commanding at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor, for active service. These companies responded immediately, and before this eventful day was done they were mustered into the service of the United States and took up their duties at the fort.

By another special order issued on the 26th the 4th Battalion of Infantry commanded by Major Francis L. Lee had also been called out to do garrison duty at Fort Warren. The battalion responded and on the morning of May 27, was mustered into the service.

Telegrams arriving from Washington on the 27th showed that the danger to the capital was past, and the alarm which had been caused in Massachusetts subsided. It was evident that the two Companies of Cadets would provide a sufficient guard for Fort Warren, so, by General Order No. 16, dated May 27, it was ordered that the 4th Battalion of Infantry should be mustered out. This was done on May 31, the battalion having been in the service four days. This same General Order No. 16 directed that the two Companies of Cadets should be mustered out as soon as they were relieved from duty at Fort Warren. The Boston Cadets were retained in the service until July 2, when their places were taken by Co. "B", 7th Regt. Inf., M. V. M., while the Salem Cadets were retained until October 11, on which dates respectively the Cadet Companies were mustered out and discharged.

COMPANY "B", SEVENTH REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS
VOLUNTEER MILITIA (INFANTRY)

SIX MONTHS

Early in July, 1862, on the day before the muster out of the Boston Cadets, who had been doing garrison duty at Fort Warren, Co. "B", 7th Regt. Inf. Mass. Vol. Mil. was called upon to do similar duty. Special Order No. 187, issued from the office of the Adjutant General June 30, 1862, reads as follows :

Company "B", Seventh Regiment, 4th Brigade, 2d Division, M. V. M. having volunteered for active duty in the service of the United States for the term of six months, is hereby detached from said regiment.

Captain Staten will report with his command at these Head Quarters at twelve o'clock M. on Tuesday, July 1st, for orders.

Under this order Company "B" reported and was mustered into the United States service on July 1, 1862, to serve six months. It was then immediately assigned to duty at Fort Warren, where it formed a part of the garrison until Dec. 31, 1862, when, its term of enlistment having expired, it was mustered out and discharged.

FIRST BATTERY LIGHT ARTILLERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

(Cook's Battery)

THREE MONTHS

By Special Order No. 61, dated April 20, 1861, Maj. Asa M. Cook, commanding the 1st Batty. Lt. Art. Mass. Vol. Mil., "Minute Men", was ordered to have his battery in readiness before midnight on that date. The guns, six brass six pounders, ten tons of ammunition, and seventy horses were sent forward by rail at 10 o'clock that night, and the men entrained for New York the following morning. Arriving in New York that evening, April 21, they embarked on the steamer DE SOTO for Fort Monroe, arriving at their destination on the 23d. They were ordered to proceed immediately to Annapolis, Md., where they arrived early on the morning of the 24th.

Until May 4, the battery was quartered at the Naval Academy. On that date it proceeded to the Relay House. Not until May 18 was the battery formally mustered into the service of the United States. On June 13 it was ordered back to Baltimore to assist in protecting the polls during the election. Returning to the Relay House, it was soon ordered back to Camp Clare on the outskirts of Baltimore, and was later quartered in Monument Square and at the Custom House.

Returning again to Camp Clare on the 10th of July, it remained there until Aug. 2, when the men were mustered out of the service. Entraining at once for Boston, they arrived on the following day and were honored by a military parade and a reception by Mayor Wightman.

N.B. This organization is frequently referred to as the 1st Battery Mass. Light Artillery (3 mos.).

FIRST BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 1st Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Art. was raised mostly at the old recruiting station on Hanover St., Boston, in the summer of 1861, largely through the efforts of Josiah Porter, who had, since 1852, been a member of the old Boston Light Artillery, known in 1861 as Cook's Battery, and who, when the 1st Battery was raised, became its captain. The first hundred men were mustered in at the old armory on Cooper St., Aug. 28, 1861, and were immediately sent to Camp Cameron, North Cambridge. Here it was organized and drilled. On Oct. 3 it started for Washington. After its arrival it was equipped with four 10 lb. Parrott guns and two 12 lb. howitzers. Near Washington it spent the winter of 1861-62.

Camping for awhile on Capitol Hill, it was soon assigned to Franklin's Division and sent to Fairfax Court House, Va. When the 6th Corps was formed the battery was attached to the 1st Division and sent to the Peninsula. Here it took part in the Seven Days Battles — Mechanicsville, Gaines' Mill, Charles City Cross Roads (Glendale), and Malvern Hill. It lost two men killed at Charles City Cross Roads and a few wounded and captured at Gaines' Mill. Arriving at Harrison's Landing, July 2, the battery exchanged its guns for six 12 lb. Napoleons.

Returning to the defenses of Washington about the last of August, it took part in the fall campaign of 1862, being engaged at South Mountain (Crampton's Gap), Sept. 14, and at Antietam, Sept. 17, but suffering no casualties. In the battle of Fredericksburg, Dec. 13, the battery was temporarily attached to Howe's (2d) Division and was engaged without loss. After this engagement it went into winter quarters near White Oak Church, and, with the exception of the period of the "Mud March" in January, remained at that place until the opening of the Chancellorsville campaign in May, 1863. Capt. William H. McCartney now commanded the battery, Captain Porter having resigned soon after the battle of Antietam.

On May 3, 1863, the battery again crossed the Rappahannock near Fredericksburg and supported the infantry of the 6th Corps in its assault which carried Marye's Heights. Later the same day and on the following day the battery did excellent service in the conflict at Salem Church, losing one man killed and one wounded.

At Gettysburg it was with the 6th Corps, did not arrive on the field until near sunset the 2d, and was not engaged. After participating in the Mine Run campaign in the latter part of November, 1863, it went into winter quarters at Brandy Station.

Crossing the Rapidan at Germanna Ford, May 4, 1864, the battery was in position on the Union right May 5 at the Wilderness. Continuing by the left flank to Spottsylvania, it was engaged May 9 on a knoll where the Sedgwick monument now stands and facing the fields of the Spindle farm. Here General Sedgwick was killed by a sharpshooter while standing between the guns of the right section of the battery. The location of the guns remained unchanged throughout the action.

At Cold Harbor, June 1 to 12 the battery was in action south of the Mechanicsville road where it remained during the days of the battle, losing one man killed and several wounded. Crossing the James River about the middle of June, from the 17th of that month until the 9th of July the battery was stationed on the lines in front of Petersburg. Sent with the 6th Corps to Washington, it reached that city July 11, 1864, just in time to assist in saving the city from capture by General Early. It then joined in the pursuit of Early into the Valley. It was engaged at Winchester (Opequan), Sept. 19, losing 4 wounded, and at Fisher's Hill, Sept. 22, losing one wounded. On Oct. 2 the recruits and the re-enlisted men about 85 in number were transferred to Batty. "M" 5th Regt. U. S. Art. and later to the 9th Mass. Lt. Battery, while the original members, whose time was out, entrained for home. On October 19, 1864, they were mustered out of the United States service.

Two of the former members of the battery were killed at Cedar Creek, Oct. 19, while serving with Batty. "M" 5th U. S. Artillery.

SECOND BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

(Re-enlisted)

The 2d Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was recruited by Maj. Moses G. Cobb at the armory of the Boston Light Artillery. The work of enlistment was begun April 20, 1861, but the original enlistment roll bears the date of April 24. It was originally raised as a company of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, but by Special Order No. 148, dated May 2, 1861, its organization as "a company of light artillery" was authorized. On July 5 it was ordered to proceed to Camp Adams, Wollaston Heights, Quincy, and on the 31st the men were formally enlisted and mustered into the service of the United States. This was the first Massachusetts battery to be mustered into the service for three years. It was armed with six bronze guns which had been rifled at Alger's Foundry in South Boston and which fired a 10½ lb. Schenkel shell.

On Aug. 8, 1861, the battery left Quincy for Washington, but while en route was ordered to proceed to Baltimore. On the 12th it occupied Mount Clare near Baltimore, the old camping place of Cook's Battery. Major Cobb not being able to go to the front in person, the battery left the State under the command of Capt. Ormand F. Nims who had had a prominent part in recruiting it.

During November and December, 1861, the battery formed a part of an expedition which marched through the region of the Eastern Shore of Maryland to break up the work of recruiting for the Confederate army and to overawe the Secession element. After an absence of forty-one days it returned to its camp at Mount Clare. Here it remained until February, 1862.

Having been assigned to duty with General Butler in the Department of the Gulf, on Feb. 25, 1862, it embarked for Fort Monroe, going into camp next day at Old Point Comfort where it remained until April 19, when it embarked on the transport DE WITT CLINTON, arriving at Ship Island on May 14. New Orleans was reached May 24, and Baton Rouge on June 2. Here the battery was assigned to Genl. Thomas Williams' Brigade.

From June 20 to July 26 the battery was engaged in a demonstration against Vicksburg in coöperation with Farragut's fleet. This was a very hard and trying campaign, and at its close only 21 out of the 140 men in the battery were able to do duty. A detail of 30 men from the 9th Conn. Inf. was secured in order that all the guns might be manned.

It was while the battery was in this weakened condition that it was called upon, Aug. 5, to assist in repelling the attack of Genl. John C. Breckenridge on Baton Rouge. The Confederate attacks lasted from 4 to 9 a.m. The 2d Battery, now commanded by Lieutenant Trull, rendered very gallant service, changing its position four times in its efforts to beat back the enemy. The defense was successful, but the Union commander, Genl. Thomas Williams fell at the head of his command. The battery's loss was slight.

Proceeding down the Mississippi about the 21st of August, it remained in the vicinity of New Orleans until Dec. 17, when it returned to Baton Rouge where it spent the winter of 1862-63. On the 16th of Dec. Genl. N. P. Banks, who had succeeded General Butler in command of the Department of the Gulf, reorganized the forces in Louisiana as the 19th Corps, and Nims' Battery became a part of Grover's (4th) Division.

About March 13, 1863, the battery joined in the expedition which coöperated with Admiral Farragut in his effort to get his ships past the batteries at Port Hudson. Returning to Baton Rouge, March 20, a week later it was sent to Donaldsonville, La., whence it marched to Brashear City, where it joined the Teche expedition as a part of Kimball's (2d) Brigade of Grover's (4th) Division, Banks' (19th) Corps.

Opelousas was reached April 20, and Alexandria on May 12. Here a Union fleet was found in possession of the town. After resting here about ten days the entire expedition returned via Simmsport to Bayou Sara on the Mississippi River. Arriving here May 24, the battery joined in the advance on Port Hudson. Here it did duty until the surrender of that place July 9, and two days later returned to Baton Rouge.

The autumn of 1863 was spent in another expedition into the Teche country. The battery left New Orleans Sept. 18, arriving at Brashear City the following day. A week later the march was continued to Bisland and thence to Opelousas, skirmishing and fighting with the enemy taking place almost every day. Opelousas was reached October 21, and here the battery was attached to Genl. A. L. Lee's Cavalry Division.

Leaving Opelousas on Nov. 1, the return trip began. Two sections of the battery had proceeded as far as Vermillionville when the remaining section under Lieut. Wm. Marland was attacked at Carrion Crow Bayou on the 2d and at Grand Couteau on the 3d, repelling the attacks on both days and suffering small loss. Arriving at New Iberia, Nov. 17, the battery remained there until January, 1864, when it went into winter quarters at Franklin.

On March 13, 1864, it broke camp and joined the Red River expedition under Genl. W. B. Franklin. Still assigned to Genl. A. L. Lee's Cavalry Division, the battery proceeded by forced marches along the same route which it had followed in the Teche expedition, reaching Alexandria March 21. On the 28th the march inland was resumed, Natchitoches was reached April 3, and Pleasant Hill April 7. On the following day, April 8, at Sabine Cross Roads, about three miles from Mansfield, La., a severe engagement took place in which the Union forces were driven from the field, the 2d Battery losing three men killed or mortally wounded, 16 officers and men wounded, five captured, together with all its guns and 82 horses. Retreating to Pleasant Hill and thence to Grand Ecore, the men were transported by boat to New Orleans, arriving April 22. On May 10 the battery was transferred to Carrollton and re-equipped with four light guns which were later exchanged for three inch rifles. Captain Nims was sent north July 27 on recruiting duty, and two days later the members who had not re-enlisted embarked on the U. S. Mail Steamer MATANZAS for home. On Aug. 16 they were mustered out in Boston.

The battery, now made up of recruits and re-enlisted men, proceeded on Sept. 2 to Morganzia, La., where it remained until the following spring. On Mar. 7, 1865, the battery sailed to Barrancas, Fla., to join Genl. Steele's expedition against Mobile. Captain Nims had now resigned and the battery was commanded by Captain Marland. After an exhausting march through the woods and swamps of western Florida it reached the vicinity of Mobile, Ala., and there assisted in the capture of Fort Blakely which surrendered April 9, the same day that Genl. Lee surrendered at Appomattox.

The battery now set out on an expedition to Claiborne, Ala. Its last battle was at Daniels' Landing, April 11, 1865. Late in May, after a seven weeks march, Columbus, Miss., was reached. From here the battery was sent back to Mobile by rail and thence to Vicksburg by boat, arriving June 4. On July 22 its guns and equipments were turned over to the United States authorities and the men embarked for home. Boston was reached Aug. 4, and on the 11th, at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor, the members of the battery were paid off and discharged.

THIRD BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 3d Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was recruited at Boston by Dexter H. Follett, who had been adjutant of the old Boston Light Artillery from 1859 to 1861. The rolls were signed and a large number of the men were mustered into service Sept. 5, 1861, and by Special Order dated Sept. 6, 1861, the battery was ordered into camp at Lynnfield. Before nightfall it reported at that station with 115 officers and men. Here at Camp Schouler the battery was organized and equipped with two rifled 6 pounder guns, two smooth bore 6 pounders, and two 12 pounder howitzers. Commanded by Captain Follett it started for Washington in company with the 22d Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. Oct. 8. By order of General McClellan on Oct. 16 it was assigned to Genl. Fitz John Porter's Division which was afterward attached to the 5th Corps, Army of the Potomac.

Captain Follett resigned Nov. 27, and was succeeded by 1st Lieut. Augustus P. Martin, who had been an officer in the old 1st Batty. Lt. Arty. M. V. M. during its three months service. It was now armed with six smooth bore Napoleon guns.

After a winter spent in the vicinity of Washington, on March 21, 1862, it embarked for Fort Monroe, arriving on the 24th. At Yorktown, April 5, the battery was engaged losing two men killed and three wounded. At Hanover Court House, May 27, it was in action with slight loss. On June 27 at Gaines' Mill the battery was heavily engaged, losing in the retreat one gun and three caissons, and having 1st Lieutenant Mortimer and one man mortally wounded. At Malvern Hill the battery was not engaged but preceded the rest of the army in its march toward Harrison's Landing.

About the middle of August the battery marched to Hampton and there took steamer for Aquia Creek, arriving Aug. 21. From there it proceeded to Falmouth and thence to the line of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad to reinforce the Army of Virginia under General Pope. During the second battle of Bull Run it was near the field of action — on the 28th being at Manassas, on the 29th between Manassas and Gainesville, and on the 30th at Centreville — but was not engaged.

In the autumn campaign in Maryland it was present at Antietam, Sept. 17, 1862, but was not engaged. On the 20th it was posted on the hills just north of Blackford's Ford and covered the crossing of Barnes' Brigade and other troops sent to the south side of the Potomac in pursuit of Lee. These troops later recrossed under protection of the artillery fire.

At Fredericksburg in December the battery was held in reserve and did not cross the Rappahannock until the 14th, the day after the battle. Two days later it went into winter quarters at Potomac Creek. With the short interruption of the "Mud March" in the latter part of January, the battery remained here until Apr. 30, 1863, when it broke camp and started for Chancellorsville. Here it was in position near the left of the line but was not engaged. It returned on the 5th to its old camp at Potomac Creek. In the latter part of May and early part of June the battery was in position on the north bank of the Rappahannock guarding the crossing at United States Ford.

On June 16, 1863, Captain Martin was placed in command of the Artillery Brigade of the 5th Corps and commanded it through the Gettysburg campaign rendering most gallant and efficient service. The command of the battery during this period devolved upon 1st Lieut. A. F. Walcott. It reached the field of Gettysburg July 2, and was in position near the foot of Little Round Top during the severe fighting on the Union left, losing five men wounded.

During the late summer and fall of 1863 the battery was active on the Rappahannock and along the line of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad. At Mine Run in the latter part of November it operated with its own Corps and with the 6th and 1st Corps. Returning to the region of the Rappahannock it went into winter quarters midway between Rappahannock and Bealton Stations. Here it remained until early in the following May.

Breaking camp May 2, 1864, the battery proceeded across the Rappahannock and encamped at Culpepper Court House. At 1 A.M. on the 4th it started for Germanna Ford on the Rapidan. During the battle of the Wilderness, May 5, 6, and 7, the battery was in position on the Union right but was not heavily engaged and suffered no casualties. Moving on to Spottsylvania, on the 8th and 12th it was severely engaged on the Union right near Laurel Hill, losing nine men wounded, two of these mortally. Here Captain A. P. Martin, who was serving as division chief of artillery, was shot in the neck.

At North Anna River, May 23, the battery was again in action, Lieutenant Cargill and two men being seriously wounded. From May 30 to June 4 it was engaged near Totopotomoy Creek, Shady Grove Church Road, and Cold Harbor, losing one man killed on the 4th. On the 16th it crossed the James at Wilcox's Landing and moved to the front of Petersburg. For 57 days the battery was in position on or near the lines facing the beleaguered city. On Aug. 18 it was severely engaged at Weldon Railroad losing one man killed and four wounded. During its entire stay before Petersburg it lost three men killed or mortally wounded.

The term of service of the battery being about to expire, on Aug. 30 it left its position at the front and went into camp. On Sept. 1 the recruits and re-enlisted men were transferred to the 5th Mass. Batty., and the members who had not re-enlisted made preparations to go home. They marched to the neighborhood of City Point, Sept. 4, and on the following day embarked on the U. S. Mail Steamer JOHN BROOKS bound for Washington. Here they entrained for Boston, Mass., reaching their destination Sept. 9. After a parade through the principal streets under the escort of the Boston Light Artillery, a banquet was held at the Cooper Street Armory at which Mayor Lincoln, Captain Follett, Captain Martin, and others spoke of the battery in terms of highest praise. The men were then furloughed until Friday the 16th when they reassembled on Boston Common and were mustered out of the United States service.

FOURTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

(Re-enlisted)

The 4th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was raised by Capt. Charles H. Manning of Salem, Mass., whose militia unit, the Salem Light Artillery, formed its nucleus. It was one of the Butler organizations, the others being the 30th and 31st Massachusetts Infantry, the 6th Massachusetts Battery, and the three unattached companies of Massachusetts Cavalry. It assembled at Camp Chase, Lowell, Sept. 23, 1861, and remained there until Nov. 20, when it sailed on the transport CONSTITUTION for Ship Island, Miss., arriving Dec. 3. On Apr. 15 it embarked on the transport NORTH AMERICA, entered the Mississippi River, occupied Forts Jackson and St. Philip after their surrender, and arrived at New Orleans May 2. Proceeding on to Carrollton, on the 6th it landed at Camp Parapet.

The guns of the battery were four rifled 12 pounders and two howitzers. On June 15 two 12 pounders under Lieutenant Taylor were sent by steamer with an expedition to Pass Manchac which connects Lake Maurepas with Lake Ponchartrain. Dispersing a Confederate force at this point, the men next tore up the New Orleans and Jackson Railroad for some distance, then ascended the Tangipahoa River on a reconnaissance, later visited several points on Lake Ponchartrain, and finally returned to camp June 20.

On July 10 the battery embarked for Baton Rouge, arriving two days later, and being attached to Genl. Thomas Williams' command. Here on Aug. 5 it was heavily engaged in repelling the attack of Genl. John C. Breckenridge, losing one man killed and five wounded. Leaving Baton Rouge, Aug. 21, it was transferred to Carrollton where it occupied Camp Williams, named for the gallant officer who lost his life at Baton Rouge. Here the battery suffered much from sickness.

One section of rifled guns under Lieutenant Biggs was sent, Oct. 4, to Algiers, and on the 29th the rest of the battery was sent to Fort Pike on the eastern end of Lake Ponchartrain. Captain Manning resigned Oct. 20, and was succeeded by Capt. George G. Trull, formerly a lieutenant in the 2d Mass. Battery. From Fort Pike it went on several expeditions to points on Lake Ponchartrain, being engaged in several small combats. On Jan'y. 24, 1863, it was transferred to Foster's Cotton Press, New Orleans.

Meanwhile the section at Algiers under Lieutenant Biggs accompanied General Weitzel's expedition up the lower Teche country clearing that entire section of Confederate forces as far as Fort Bisland, then returned to Brashear City. On Jan'y. 28, it rejoined the rest of the battery at New Orleans.

Ordered again to Baton Rouge, the battery arrived Mar. 1, and from the 13th to the 20th took part in the demonstration against Port Hudson in coöperation with Farragut's Fleet. Breaking camp again May 21, it proceeded via Plains Store to the front of Port Hudson, arriving the 24th. It was now attached to the 3d Division of the 19th Corps, General Emory commanding the Division. It supported with its fire the assaults of May 27 and June 14, being temporarily with General Augur's Division.

On July 10, after the surrender of Port Hudson, the battery returned to its old camp at Baton Rouge. About the middle of the month it was sent to Donaldsonville. Here

Aug. 4 it took steamer for Port Hudson, remaining in that vicinity until the 22d when it was again sent to Baton Rouge, and from there on the 20th of September back to Donaldsonville. From here it marched up La Fourche River via Labadieville and Thibodeau to the New Orleans and Opelousas Railroad, thence proceeding westward along the railroad through Bayou Boeuf to Brashear City, arriving on the evening of the 23d. Here it was again attached to the 3d Division of the 19th Corps. Leaving this place the battery advanced to Fort Bisland whence, on Oct. 3, it proceeded on through Franklin, New Iberia, and Vermillionville to Opelousas, engaging in much skirmishing along the way. After a ten days stay at Opelousas, on Nov. 1 the expedition started on its return trip. At or near Vermillion Bayou the battery was engaged with the enemy Nov. 11, without loss, and on the 17th arrived at New Iberia. While at New Iberia near the close of the year 1863 practically all the members of the 4th Battery re-enlisted as Veteran Volunteers and on January 4, 1864, were re-mustered for three years. On January 7, the return march was continued, Franklin being reached on the 9th. Here the battery remained in camp until the 25th when it continued on toward New Orleans arriving at that city on the 28th. Here it remained until February 11 when the re-enlisted men embarked on the steamer KARNACK for home to enjoy their veteran furlough. Arriving in Boston, Mass., February 21, the men remained on furlough until the 25th of March when the return trip by train and boat began.

New Orleans was reached April 6 and the battery was given quarters in the Tobacco Warehouse and the men drilled as infantry until June 30 when they were transferred to the Apollo Stables, their old camping ground, and re-equipped as light artillery. Here the battery remained until September 5 when it proceeded to Morganzia, La., making several expeditions in the two months which followed into the country north of Port Hudson.

On November 10 it received orders to proceed to White River, Ark., whence it was sent to Memphis, Tenn., where it arrived November 28. In this vicinity it remained until January 1, 1865, when it again embarked for New Orleans, reaching that city January 4.

Proceeding thence to Kennersville, La., it remained at that place until February 9 when it embarked for Dauphin's Island, Ala. Here it was attached to Veatch's (1st) Division, Granger's (13th) Corps, becoming a part of General Steele's expedition against Mobile, Ala. After a very trying march through woods and swamps and over bottomless roads, it reached the vicinity of Mobile and participated in the siege of Spanish Fort and Fort Blakely. Spanish Fort surrendered April 8, and Fort Blakely fell after an assault on April 9. Two days after the surrender of the latter fort the battery proceeded to Belle Rose, whence on the 15th it was transported to Mobile which had now been evacuated by the enemy.

Remaining in this city until June 30, it was ordered to Galveston, Tex. Arriving July 5, it was sent thence to Houston in the interior of the State. This was its headquarters until October 1 when it returned to Galveston and embarked for New Orleans, its equipment having been turned in preparatory to returning home.

After delays at Galveston and New Orleans, on October 14, in company with the members of the 7th Battery, the men took passage on the steamer GUIDING STAR for New York. The early part of the voyage was very tempestuous, and the ship was forced to stop at Port Royal, S. C., for coal. New York was reached November 2, and on the following day the men arrived at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor. Here they remained until November 10 when they were mustered out after over four years of service.

FIFTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

(Re-enlisted)

The 5th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was organized in September, October, and November, 1861, by George D. Allen of Malden and John B. Hyde of New Bedford, both of whom were commissioned first lieutenants in the battery. On September 30 the nucleus of the organization went into camp at Camp Schouler, Lynnfield, where it remained until November 14 when it was transferred to Camp Massasoit, Readville. Max Eppendorf, a native of Saxony and a former artillery officer in the Saxon army, was commissioned captain October 23.

The process of recruiting continued through the autumn of 1861, and most of the original members of the battery were mustered in December 3. On Christmas Day, 1861, the battery left for Washington, arriving two days later and being quartered at Camp Duncan, Capitol Hill. On January 25, 1862, 1st Lieut. George D. Allen succeeded Max Eppendorf as captain. Early in February the original guns of the battery, four rifled 6 pounders and two 12 pounder howitzers, were exchanged for six 3 inch rifles.

About this time the battery was assigned to Fitz John Porter's Division which later became a part of the 5th Corps, Army of the Potomac.

Reaching Fort Monroe, March 24, it was present at the siege of Yorktown in April, but was not seriously engaged. Assigned to Morell's Division, Porter's (5th) Corps, it was present at Hanover Court House, May 27, without loss. For a month before the opening of the Seven Days battles it was encamped on the Dr. Gaines farm, the men doing picket duty. At Gaines' Mill, June 27, under command of 1st Lieut. John B. Hyde, it was attached to Butterfield's Brigade and was very heavily engaged, losing four guns, two men killed, four wounded, and two missing, together with 22 horses. With the two guns remaining it rendered valuable service at Malvern Hill, July 1, then retired to Harrison's Landing. While here, on July 12, the battery ceased for a while to exist as an independent unit, twenty-five of its men being assigned temporarily to the 4th R. I. Batty., while the rest of the officers and men were assigned to the 3d Mass. Batty.

Returning to the defenses of Washington early in September, it was stationed successively at Upton's Hill and Fort Corcoran awaiting equipment with new guns. The re-equipment having been completed, about October 10 it rejoined its division at Sharpsburg. Capt. Charles A. Phillips was now in command of the battery.

On December 13, 1862, it crossed the Rappahannock at Fredericksburg and was in position near the Poor House being sharply engaged during the latter part of the action. It participated in the "Mud March" in January, 1863, and in the movement to Chancellorsville about May 1. After this campaign it was attached to McGilvery's Artillery Brigade and with it participated in the battle of Gettysburg, July 2 and 3. Here it lost seven men killed and 13 wounded together with 59 horses. Soon after this battle the battery rejoined the 5th Corps.

On November 7 it was engaged at Rappahannock Station and during the latter part of the same month it participated in the Mine Run campaign. The winter of 1863-64 was spent in the old earthworks at Rappahannock Station.

May 4, 1864, the battery crossed the Rapidan at Germanna Ford. It was slightly engaged at the Wilderness, May 5, was in action on the Union right near Spottsylvania, May 9 to 12, was engaged at Bethesda Church, June 3, and near Bottom's Bridge, June 8, losing in this campaign six men killed and several wounded.

Crossing the James River, June 13, on the 18th it was in action before Petersburg, and was again engaged July 30 during the battle of the Crater. It was in the movement to the Weldon Railroad, August 18 to 21, and was stationed at various places on the east front of Petersburg during the late summer and fall.

On Sept. 1 the recruits and re-enlisted men of the 3d Mass. Batty. were transferred to the 5th Batty., and on October 3 the members of the 5th Batty. who had not re-enlisted were discharged and sent home.

Thirty-nine of the original members of the battery having re-enlisted in the winter of 1863-64, these, with the recruits received in 1864, kept the numbers up to the required standard, and the battery continued its existence as a veteran organization.

It was in the movement to Hatcher's Run, October 27, and to Jarrett's Station on the Weldon Railroad during the second week in December. About December 19 two of its guns were stationed in Battery XXII while the other four were placed in Fort Alexander Hays. Various movements took place during the winter of 1864-65, but the opening of spring found the battery at Fort Alexander Hays.

On April 2, the day of the general assault on Petersburg, after the capture of the Confederate battery position near the Jerusalem Road known as Battery No. 27, two detachments from the 5th Battery under 2d Lieut. M. W. Page were sent into the captured works to assist in turning the captured guns against the enemy. Lieut. Page and three men were severely wounded, the last loss of the battery in action.

During the succeeding night Petersburg was evacuated and a day or two later the battery was withdrawn to City Point. Remaining here about a month, on May 3, 1865, it started on its last march, passing northward across central Virginia and reaching the defenses of Washington, May 13. On June 2 the guns and equipment were turned in, and two days later the officers and men entrained for Boston. Camp Meigs, Readville, was reached June 6, and on the 12th the members of the battery were mustered out of the United States service.

SIXTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

(Re-enlisted)

The 6th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Art. was recruited at Camp Chase, Lowell, in the fall of 1861 and the winter following. It was one of the Butler organizations, the others being the 30th and 31st Massachusetts Infantry, the 4th Massachusetts Battery, and three unattached companies of Massachusetts Cavalry. The 6th Battery went out under the command of Captain Charles Everett of Boston.

The muster in of this unit was completed in January, 1862, and on February 8 it embarked on the transport IDAHO bound for Ship Island in the Gulf of Mexico. It was armed with two rifled and four smooth bore 6 pounder guns. Arriving at Ship Island March 8, it remained there until April 15 when it embarked on the steamer MISSISSIPPI, and, after the capture of Forts Jackson and St. Philip by the Navy, accompanied General Butler to New Orleans. Here it was attached to the brigade of Genl. Thomas Williams. One section under Lieutenant Carruth crossed the river to Algiers where it operated for some time in the region west of that city along the line of the railroad leading to Brashear City.

Early in June the entire battery was sent to Baton Rouge, and about the middle of the month two sections under Captain Everett proceeded up the Mississippi with an expedition to the front of Vicksburg. After an active campaign of about five weeks, on July 26 the entire battery was again united at Baton Rouge. Here during the battle of the 5th of August it did heroic work in repulsing the enemy's attack, losing four killed, nine wounded, and one missing.

Later in the month of August the battery was withdrawn to New Orleans where, on September 7, Lieutenant Carruth succeeded Captain Everett in command. It was now attached to Genl. Godfrey Weitzel's Reserve Brigade and was armed with two 12 pounder howitzers and four 6 pounder Sawyer guns.

On October 24 the battery proceeded to Donaldsonville where it landed and marched up Bayou La Fourche to Thibodeaux where it went into winter quarters. With the exception of a four days expedition to the Teche in January, the battery remained at Thibodeaux until February 22, 1863, when it advanced to Brashear City. Here it remained until April 9, when it joined the well known Teche expedition. It was engaged at Ft. Bisland, April 12 and 13, reached Opelousas, April 20, and, pushing northward from this place, reached Alexandria, May 4.

Returning thence, on the 17th it was ordered to proceed to Port Hudson via Bayou Sara. On reaching Bayou Sara one section was ordered to remain at Point Coupee on the west bank of the river, while the other two sections proceeded to the front of Port Hudson. Here they were engaged in supporting the assault of May 27 and during the siege which followed. After the surrender of the city, July 9, the 6th Battery again proceeded to Donaldsonville. In a reconnaissance made July 12 it had the misfortune to lose one gun. It remained in the vicinity of Donaldsonville until July 30, when it proceeded again to Thibodeaux. After nearly two months spent at this place, on Sept. 25 it was sent to Algiers for re-equipment. It was now reduced to a four gun battery and was transferred to Berwick Bay.

From October 3 to December 9, 1863, it was commanded by 2d Lieutenant Edward K. Russell of the 2d Battery. On the latter date 1st Lieutenant John F. Phelps took command and was commissioned captain to date from October 3.

About the middle of October the battery proceeded up the Teche again to Opelousas, returning to Vermillionville, November 1, and to New Iberia, November 16, where it went into winter quarters. On January 5, 1864, 56 of the members of the battery re-enlisted, and after much delay they set out for home on veteran furlough April 13. They returned to New Orleans, June 8, and there remained for the remainder of the year.

In January, 1865, enough recruits were received to increase the number of men to 169. Lieut. Edward K. Russell was now commissioned captain, and in February the battery was re-equipped with six guns. It remained at New Orleans during the remainder of its term of service.

On July 21 it embarked on the steamer ASHLAND for New York. Proceeding thence to Readville, Mass., August 1, on the 7th of that month the men were formally mustered out of the United States service. Three days later they were paid off and the battery was disbanded.

SEVENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

(Re-enlisted)

The 7th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was originally recruited by Phineas A. Davis of Lowell, Mass., as an infantry organization. It was first known as the Richardson Light Guard, being named in honor of Hon. George F. Richardson who had done much to encourage its recruitment. It was raised in April, 1861, in response to President Lincoln's first call for troops, and its officers were commissioned April 20. The company was mustered into the service May 21, to serve three years, and on the following day embarked for Fortress Monroe, where it was expected that it would be attached to the 3d Regiment. On its arrival, however, it was maintained as a separate unit, and its commander, Captain Davis, was made Provost Marshal of the fort.

It was not until December 25, 1861, that the company was detailed for light artillery duty, and on March 17, 1862, by orders from the War Department, it was permanently changed to artillery, becoming the 7th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. Even as late as May 10, 1862, it acted as infantry in the seizure and occupation of Norfolk, returning to Fortress Monroe on the 13th.

Fully equipped as a battery, it proceeded again to Norfolk, June 19, where it remained until July 25, when it was sent to Yorktown. Here it remained until September 29, when it was ordered to Suffolk, Va., arriving October 2. It did duty at the crossing of the Nansemond River until January 29, 1863, when it joined in the movement toward the Blackwater River. Encountering the enemy at Deserted House on the following morning, the battery was severely engaged, losing 13 men of whom two were killed and two mortally wounded.

About the middle of March the battery accompanied an expedition under Colonel Spear to Franklin, marching 46 miles in 17 hours and engaging the enemy with loss. It formed a part of the garrison of Suffolk during the siege of that city by Genl. Longstreet from April 11 to May 3, 1863, being actively engaged April 12, 14, and 15. On the withdrawal of the enemy's force, May 3, the battery crossed the Nansemond River in pursuit and engaged the Confederates at Providence Church road. On May 13 it joined Genl. R. S. Foster's expedition to Carrsville, and was on the march eight days, one section being engaged May 15 at Holland's House with slight loss.

It marched back to Portsmouth, June 27, and was transferred by water to White House, Va. During the first two weeks in July it was on an expedition made to threaten Richmond, and advanced as far as the crossing of the Virginia Central Railroad and the South Anna River, returning to Fortress Monroe via Williamsburg and Yorktown. On July 15 it was re-transferred to Portsmouth.

Remaining here until July 20, it was sent to Washington, being stationed at Camp Marshall until August 18 when it was sent on the transport DE MOLAY to New York City to assist in suppressing the draft riots. Here it was encamped at Madison Square until September 11 when it embarked for Washington on the transport SALVOR. Here it was stationed at Camp Barry until January, 1864.

While at Camp Barry 24 members of the battery re-enlisted, and these, together with a considerable number of recruits and men transferred from other units, insured the preservation of its identity as a veteran organization. Captain Davis having been promoted and other officers having died or resigned, 2d Lieut. Newman W. Storer now became captain and the entire officers' list was reconstructed.

On January 24, 1864, in response to orders from the War Department it started for the Department of the Gulf. Proceeding to Baltimore, on the 26th it embarked on the steamer ARAGO for New Orleans, reaching its destination February 5, and going into camp at Apollo Stables. From February 5 to March 27 it remained at New Orleans and Algiers, being attached to Grover's (2d) Division, 19th Corps.

It proceeded by water to Alexandria, La., about the last of March, and remained in that vicinity until May 11, when it started for the Mississippi River, marching via Simsport to Morganzia Bend and arriving May 27. From this point expeditions were made southward to the Atchafalaya River in June and northward to White River and St. Charles, Ark., in July and in September. The close of the year found one section of the battery posted at St. Charles, Ark., and two at Duval's Bluff.

About the middle of January, 1865, the battery was transferred to Kennerville, La., where on the 9th of the following month it embarked for Dauphin Island, Ala., as a part of General Steele's expedition against Mobile. On March 17 it crossed Mobile Bay and, as a part of Veatch's (1st) Division, Granger's (13th) Corps, made a severe and exhausting march over terrible roads leading through woods and swamps and arrived, March 27, in front of Spanish Fort. It here participated in the siege suffering slight loss. Spanish Fort surrendered April 8, and the battery was immediately transferred to the front of Fort Blakely. In supporting the assault of April 9 the battery lost one man, Corporal William Cross, killed. The same day the fort surrendered. Mobile now being evacuated by the enemy, on the 15th the battery crossed on the WHITE CLOUD to that city and went into camp.

About June 30 it was ordered to Galveston, Tex. Arriving July 3, six days later it moved to Houston in the interior of the State. In an expedition to Waverly, July 29, to arrest a murderer, one man, Private William Daley, was mortally wounded.

On October 1 the property of the battery was turned in and the men were sent down to Galveston to be transported home. After vexatious delays at Galveston and New Orleans, on October 14, in company with the members of the 4th Battery, they took passage on the steamer GUIDING STAR for New York. After a tempestuous passage, during which they were forced to stop at Port Royal, S. C., to coal ship, they arrived at New York, November 2. Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor, was reached November 3. Here the men encamped until November 10, when they were mustered out and discharged after four and one half years of service.

EIGHTH BATTERY LIGHT ARTILLERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

(Cook's Battery)

SIX MONTHS

The 8th Batty. Lt. Arty. Mass. Vol. Mil. was organized in response to the call of the President on May 26, 1862, for all the active militia of Massachusetts. Great alarm had been caused by the defeat of Banks in the Shenandoah, and Washington was thought to be in danger of capture.

On the day following this call Capt. Asa M. Cook, who had commanded the 1st Batty. Lt. Arty. Mass. Vol. Mil. in its three months service, was authorized by Special Order No. 102, A. G. O. Mass., to raise a battery of artillery for six months service. In three days 40 men had been enrolled and mustered in and were sent to Camp Cameron in North Cambridge. Here the battery was rapidly recruited up to its full complement of officers and men, and on the 25th of June, under command of Captain Cook, it set out for Washington.

In a railroad accident a short distance below Trenton, N. J., two men and thirteen horses were killed, a number of men and horses injured, and much of the battery equipment lost.

Reaching Washington, June 27, on July 1 it crossed Long Bridge and went into camp near Fairfax Seminary. Here it was drilled until August 8 when it was ordered to join the 9th Corps. In pursuance of this order it moved to Fredericksburg, arriving August 11, then proceeded with its corps to reinforce General Pope's army near Culpepper, Va. It was active throughout the entire Bull Run campaign, being engaged at 2d Bull Run, August 30, and at Chantilly, September 1, but without loss.

On September 5, it marched to Washington where it received new limbers, caissons, and ammunition in preparation for the Maryland campaign. Attached to Wilcox's Division, Reno's (9th) Corps it proceeded through Leesboro, Frederick City, and Middletown, Md., to South Mountain where it was severely engaged September 14 near Fox's Gap on the Union left losing one man killed and four wounded.

On September 17, at Antietam it was engaged near the Burnside Bridge. Here it crossed Antietam Creek with its division and was engaged on the Otto farm, holding its position on the west side of the creek at the close of the day of battle.

It then remained in camp near the mouth of Antietam Creek until October 5 when it was ordered to Washington to secure new long range guns. Being unsuccessful in this, on October 21, it set out to join the Army of the Potomac in Pleasant Valley. On this march a detachment from the 8th Battery under Lieutenants Coffin and Kirk succeeded in capturing several members of Stuart's cavalry which was engaged in a foray around the Union army.

Accompanying the Army of the Potomac in its advance into Virginia as far as Waterloo, about the middle of November it returned to Washington. Here on November 29, having completed its term of service, it was mustered out and returned to Massachusetts.

N.B. This organization is frequently referred to as the 8th Battery Mass. Light Artillery (6 mos.).

NINTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 9th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was raised in the summer of 1862, its officers being commissioned July 31 and August 6. Most of the original enlisted men were mustered in August 10. The first rendezvous of the battery was at Camp Stanton, Lynnfield, but on August 14 it was transferred to Camp Meigs, Readville.

Under command of Capt. Achille De Vecchi, an Italian officer who had seen much service in Europe, the battery left Camp Meigs for Washington, September 3, where it was stationed successively at Camp Seymour on Capitol Hill, Camp Chase on Arlington Heights on the Virginia side of the Potomac, Camp Barry on the Maryland side near the Bladensburg Toll Gate, and finally, about November 19, again on the Virginia side, one section being stationed at Fort Ramsay on Upton's Hill, and the other at Fort Buffalo, at the crossing of the Leesburg turnpike. On the 18th of September the battery was equipped with six 3 inch rifled guns. On January 26, 1863, John Bigelow of Brighton succeeded De Vecchi as captain.

The battery remained at Forts Buffalo and Ramsay until April 17, 1863, when it removed to Centreville where it remained until June 25. On this date it marched to Edwards' Ferry and was there assigned to McGilvery's First Volunteer Brigade of the Artillery Reserve of the Army of the Potomac.

Accompanying the army in its northward march, on July 2, 1863, it reached Gettysburg, and about 4 P.M. was placed in position near the Wheatfield road about 300 yards south of the Trostle farm buildings. Here it assisted in staying the tide of Longstreet's attack, firing by prolonge as it was forced to retire across the field, and finally in a last stand in the Trostle farm yard lost over 50 horses and was forced to temporarily abandon four of its guns. These, however, were brought off the field by the infantry after night-fall. The loss in personnel was 11 officers and men killed and mortally wounded, and sixteen surviving wounded, among the latter being Captain Bigelow.

On the following day the remnant of the battery under Lieutenant Milton, consisting of two guns, was engaged at Zeigler's Grove on Cemetery Hill losing five more horses.

Throughout the late summer and fall the battery was active in the campaign on or near the Rappahannock, and during the latter part of November accompanied the Army of the Potomac in the Mine Run campaign without loss. On December 13 the battery went into winter quarters on a hill about a mile northwest of Brandy Station. On February 12, 1864, Captain Bigelow returned and resumed command.

The spring of 1864 found the battery forming a part of the 3d Brigade of Reserve Artillery commanded by Maj. Robert H. Fitzhugh. On May 4, 1864, the winter camp at Brandy Station was abandoned and the battery marched to Ely's Ford on the Rapidan, crossing about 4 P.M. and proceeding toward the Chancellor house. It was not engaged at the Wilderness or Spottsylvania, but on May 19 it was in position at the Anderson farm near Spottsylvania while the battle of Harris Farm was being fought near by.

On May 23 the battery crossed the North Anna River at Jericho Ford and went into action on the south bank losing one man killed. Remaining near here until the 26th it recrossed at Quarles' Ford and moved to the region of the Totopotomoy and Bethesda Church, being under fire much of the time from May 30 to June 3. After much marching and countermarching on June 16 the James River was crossed near Wilcox Landing and the battery advanced to the Petersburg front.

On June 18 it was sharply engaged on the Baxter road near the Avery house supporting an infantry attack, losing one man killed, one mortally wounded, and five others wounded. During the remainder of the year the battery was active at several different points on the Petersburg lines, being posted at Fort Davis on the Jerusalem plank road, at Fort Dushane near the Weldon Railroad, at Fort Howard, Fort Rice, and other places. In October it took part in an expedition to Hatcher's Run and in December accompanied General Ayers' (2d) Division of the 5th Corps on another expedition to and beyond the Nottoway River on the line of the Weldon Railroad. Early in January, 1865, Captain Bigelow resigned and Lieutenant Milton succeeded him as captain of the battery.

On February 5 the battery was sent on another expedition to Hatcher's Run and was in sight of the action there on that day but was not engaged. From March 4 to March 27 the command was stationed at Fort Rice, and on the latter date it was transferred to the Artillery Brigade of the 9th Corps.

During the first days of April, 1865, it was engaged before Petersburg without loss. On the 3d, after turning in two of its guns, it marched through the deserted city of Petersburg and joined in the pursuit of the retreating Confederates, proceeding only as far as Nottoway Court House which was reached on the 5th. In this vicinity it remained until April 20 when it started for City Point arriving April 23. About this time it was transferred to the Artillery Reserve, and was attached to the brigade commanded by Maj. Charles A. Phillips, formerly commander of the 5th Massachusetts Battery.

On May 2 the 9th Battery started on its way northward, passing over most of the well known battlefields of the Army of the Potomac and reaching the defenses of Washington on the 13th. On May 29 the guns and equipment were turned in, and on June 1 the men entrained for Boston. Arriving on the 3d, they went at once to Galloup's Island where three days later they were mustered out of the United States service.

TENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 10th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was recruited by Henry H. Granger under Special Order No. 614, A. G. O. Mass., dated August 12, 1862. Within ten days the battery was filled, and on August 20 Mr. Granger was commissioned 1st Lieutenant. After a few days spent in camp at Lynnfield, the men were transferred to Camp Stanton, Boxford, where on the 9th of September they were mustered into the United States service. Near the last of the month J. Henry Sleeper, formerly a lieutenant in the 1st Massachusetts Battery, arrived and assumed command as Captain.

On October 14 the battery entrained for Fall River on the way to Washington, and on the 17th went into quarters at Camp Barry near the Bladensburg Toll Gate. Here on December 17 it received its six 3 inch rifled Rodman guns. The day after Christmas the battery proceeded to Poolesville, Md., where a new camp was laid out known as Camp Davis. Here it remained until the spring of 1863. From the 18th of April, 1863, to June 24 the battery was posted at Camp Heintzleman about a mile from Poolesville. It was then sent to join General French's command on Maryland Heights near Harper's Ferry.

In the early days of July it was sent to Frederick Junction to guard the railroad. On the 8th, with the rest of General French's command, it was assigned to the 3d Corps Army of the Potomac, and ten days later it crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry. After some marching and countermarching the battery went into camp at Fauquier White Sulphur Springs where it remained until the middle of September. It then participated in the campaign on the Rappahanock, being in action on October 13 near the little town of Auburn and losing two men severely wounded. Retiring to Centreville, in mid October it again advanced reaching Catlett's Station on the 21st and remaining there until November 7. After a period spent at Kellysville and Brandy Station, in the latter part of the month it took part in the Mine Run campaign cannonading the enemy's lines but suffering no casualties. The winter was spent in the old camp near Brandy Station.

In the spring of 1864, the 3d Corps having been abolished, the battery found itself assigned to Tidball's Artillery Brigade of Hancock's (2d) Corps. On April 8 the battery moved to Stevensburg near which place the 2d Corps was encamped. Here it remained until May 3 when just at sunset it started for the Rapidan. Crossing at Ely's Ford on the 4th, it encamped that night on the Chancellorsville battlefield, starting early next morning in a southwesterly direction for Shady Grove Church, but halting at Todd's Tavern. From here the entire 2d Corps was ordered up the Brock road toward its intersection with the Plank road where the battle of the Wilderness had begun. The 10th Battery was posted near the Union left on high ground overlooking the Fredericksburg and Orange Court House railroad. Here on the 6th it was sharply engaged with a Confederate battery beyond the railroad without loss.

Accompanying the 2d Corps to Spottsylvania, on May 9 it shelled a Confederate wagon train on the Shady Grove Church road south of the Po River, then crossed the river with the 2d Corps near the Pritchett farm, and spent the night on the Graves farm.

Recrossing the Po with Gibbon's and Birney's Divisions on the morning of the 10th, it took position on the Pritchett farm and aided in covering the retirement of Barlow's Division. Its loss at the Po River was one man killed and two wounded. It was not further engaged at Spottsylvania.

Moving to the North Anna on the 22d, it crossed the river on the Union left and remained on the south bank until the flank movement to Cold Harbor began. Near the Totopotomoy the battery was engaged May 30 losing one man. It was later engaged on the Cold Harbor front at intervals from the 2d to the 12th of June.

On the 15th the James River was crossed on the WINNISSIMMET, an old Boston and Chelsea ferry boat, and the battery advanced on Petersburg. It was in action on the east front of the city until well past the middle of July. On the 26th it crossed the Appomattox and James Rivers on the first Deep Bottom expedition, and on the 13th of August it again crossed the Appomattox to Bermuda Hundred. On August 23 it accompanied the 2d Corps on the movement to the Weldon Railroad, being heavily engaged at Reams' Station on the 25th and losing five men killed or mortally wounded, four others wounded including Captain Sleeper, 19 prisoners, 54 horses, and all its guns. Its position was a very unfortunate one, and its heavy loss was no reflection on the courage of the officers and men.

A full new equipment having been secured, on the 24th of September the command was placed in Battery XIV near Fort Morton. Here the battery was active until October 24 when it was ordered to the left with the 2d Corps. It was heavily engaged at Hatcher's Run, October 27, losing two officers and one man killed, two wounded, seven horses killed, and one gun disabled. Here Lieutenant Granger who had raised the battery fell, and the command was temporarily given to Lieutenant Smith of Battery "K" 4th U. S. Artillery. The battery was now moved to the right and located in Forts Stevenson and Blaisdell. Captain Sleeper soon returned, as did also Lieutenant Adams, and with certain promotions a full complement of officers was again secured. Later moved to Forts Emory and Siebert the battery spent the winter of 1864-65 without important event until February 5, when, under the personal command of Lieutenant Adams, it accompanied the 2d Corps to a point on Hatcher's Run near Armstrong's Mill where it was sharply engaged without loss.

On February 27 Captain Sleeper resigned and Lieutenant Adams became captain. The battery was engaged in shelling the enemy's lines March 25, 1865, during the capture and recapture of Fort Stedman. It was in action again April 2 supporting the assault on the Confederate right near the Boydton road. After the evacuation of Petersburg by the Confederates it followed in pursuit of the enemy until the day of the surrender. At a point a little beyond Farmville, on the 7th, it fired its last hostile shots.

After the surrender the command returned to Burkeville Junction where it remained until May 2 when it began its march to Washington. The arduous service of the spring campaign is shown by the fact that between April 3 and April 15 thirty-six horses died of exhaustion.

The outskirts of Washington were reached April 13, and after the Grand Review the guns and horses were turned in and on June 2 the men entrained for home. Arriving in Boston they were transferred to Galloup's Island to be mustered out. Their muster out rolls bear the date of June 9, but not until the 14th were the men paid off and finally disbanded.

ELEVENTH BATTERY LIGHT ARTILLERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER MILITIA

NINE MONTHS

The 11th Batty. Lt. Arty. Mass. Vol. Mil. was one of the new militia units raised to fill the quota of Massachusetts under the President's call of August 4, 1862, for 300,000 men to serve nine months. It was recruited through the efforts of Edward J. Jones of Boston, and its officers were mustered into the service August 5, 1862. The battery was raised in and around Boston and went into camp at Camp Meigs, Readville, Mass., where on August 25 the men were mustered into the service of the United States.

Ordered to Washington, October 3, it immediately entrained, arriving at the capital October 6. Here it was assigned to General Casey's Division and was at first stationed at Camp Barry near the Bladensburg Toll Gate. On November 19 it was transferred to Hall's Hill and assigned to General Abercrombie's command. On the 28th it reported to Colonel Randall commanding the 3d Vermont Brigade at Fairfax Station.

The battery was soon sent forward to the vicinity of Union Mills and Wolf Run Shoals. During the winter it was often used as cavalry, doing picket duty between Wolf Run Shoals and Centreville, and making reconnaissances in the direction of Warrenton. From about February 1 to April 18, 1863, the main camp of the battery was in the forts on the heights near Centreville.

On April 18 the battery was ordered to report to Colonel Sickles commanding a brigade of Pennsylvania Reserves and was stationed at Fort Ramsay on Upton's Hill and at Fort Buffalo at the crossing of the Leesburg turnpike, relieving the 9th Massachusetts Battery at these posts. Here the command did garrison duty until May 23, 1863, when it was ordered to Washington preparatory to being sent home, its term of enlistment being about to expire. Turning in its United States property, it entrained for Boston, arriving May 28. The following day the men were mustered out of the United States service to date from May 25, 1863.

Retained in the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia as a unit of the 1st Division, in July, 1863, it rendered very efficient service in suppressing the Draft Riot in the city of Boston.

N. B. This organization is frequently referred to as the 11th Battery Mass. Light Artillery (9 mos.).

ELEVENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 11th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. (3 years) had for its nucleus the 11th Batty. Lt. Arty. Mass. Vol. Mil. (9 months). On December 1, 1863, Captain Jones, who had commanded the battery during its 9 months service, received verbal orders from Governor Andrew directing him to recruit his command up to war strength. In twenty-eight days the recruitment was completed and the command again rendezvoused at Camp Meigs, Readville. Here it was mustered into the service January 2, 1864.

Leaving the State, February 5, 1864, it proceeded to Washington where it remained until the 9th of April, when it was assigned to the 9th Corps, which was being reorganized at Baltimore, Md. Passing through Washington with its Corps on the 25th of April, it followed the Army of the Potomac into the Wilderness, May 6, 1864, being only slightly engaged and without loss. At Spottsylvania, May 8 to 19, it suffered no casualty. At the North Anna River in the latter part of the month it was present, being temporarily attached to the 2d Corps. It was present at Bethesda Church, near Cold Harbor, June 1 to 3, but was not heavily engaged.

Crossing the James about the middle of June, it was at once pushed forward to the Petersburg front and was actively engaged, losing one man killed on the 19th and another on the 21st. Temporarily attached to the 5th Corps, it took part in the battle on the Weldon Railroad, August 21 and 22, without loss. It was in action on various parts of the Petersburg front during the fall and winter following, the spring of 1865 finding it posted at Fort McGilvery and in the works on the Union right near the Appomattox River.

On March 25, the morning of the capture and recapture of Fort Stedman, it was posted in a small work known as Fort Friend situated about 600 yards in the rear of Stedman. Here it rendered most valuable service in repulsing a portion of the enemy who had captured the fort and were pressing forward toward the Union rear. For this service the battery was highly complimented by Colonel Tidball the commander of the 9th Corps Artillery.

After the evacuation of Petersburg, April 3, the battery was one of the few selected to follow in pursuit of the retreating Confederates, and, after the surrender at Appomattox on April 9, it was detailed with others to take charge of the surrendered cannon of the Army of Northern Virginia.

Returning to Washington and thence to Boston, on June 16, 1865, the men were mustered out at their old camp at Readville, Mass.

TWELFTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 12th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was raised by Jacob Miller and others under Special Orders dated September 17 and October 3, 1862. The first rendezvous of the organization was Camp Day, Cambridge, from whence, on November 8, it was transferred to Camp Meigs, Readville. Here its organization was completed, the men being mustered in by detachments during the fall and early winter, while the officers were mustered December 8. Mr. Miller was commissioned captain.

Ordered to join the force of General Banks at New Orleans, it sailed January 3, 1863, on the transport E. WILBUR FARLEY, and after a stormy voyage arrived at New Orleans, February 3, where it was first stationed at Apollo Stables. After a month it was ordered to Baton Rouge where it received its guns.

Early in April the battery returned to New Orleans and was quartered at the Metairie Race Course where for a short time it was mounted and served as cavalry. On the 17th it was dismounted and sent to Brashear City on the New Orleans and Opelousas Railroad where for five weeks it was engaged in the defense of transports moving up the Atchafalaya River with men and supplies. Returning to New Orleans, May 23, it was stationed at Bernard's Stables and again equipped with field pieces.

Early in June, 1863, Lieutenant Chamberlain with a detachment was stationed at Fort Banks near the outskirts of the city of New Orleans, while about the same time two detachments were sent to Port Hudson. On July 6 the battery was ordered to the Canal, the detachments from Port Hudson and Fort Banks returning on July 19 and 22 respectively.

From September 20 to October 15 the command was stationed at Tivoli Circle, New Orleans, and on the latter date was sent up the river to Port Hudson. Here it remained most of the time until its muster out. The details of its service during the years 1864 and 1865 are exceedingly meagre. During the spring and summer of 1864 detachments were frequently sent out on foraging expeditions and reconnaissances. On May 6, 1864, it accompanied a force of infantry and cavalry under Colonel Fundy and assisted in driving away a force of Confederates which had approached to a point within a mile and a half of the fort. During the summer and fall 25 men of the battery, mounted and equipped as cavalry, kept the country for a distance of a dozen miles from Port Hudson free from bushwhackers and guerillas. On the 24th of August the battery accompanied an expedition under General Herron to Clinton, a town twenty-five miles northeast from Port Hudson. About twelve miles out on the Jackson road it had a skirmish with the enemy but suffered no loss.

No reports were sent in by the officers in command of the battery during the year 1865, hence no details of its service during this period can be given. It returned to Massachusetts in July, 1865, and on the 25th of that month the officers and men were mustered out at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor.

THIRTEENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 13th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was raised by Timothy W. Terry of New Bedford and others during the fall of 1862 and the early part of the following winter. It rendezvoused at Camp Meigs, Readville, October 27, 1862, and there completed its recruitment and organization. The men were mustered in on various dates, and the original officers were commissioned November 3. Philip H. Tyler was commissioned captain on this date, but on December 13 he was transferred to the 14th Battery and was not mustered.

The 13th Battery was ordered to New Orleans and left Boston on the sailing transport DE WITT CLINTON, January 20, 1863, under command of Captain Charles H. J. Hamlin who had had prior service in Batty. "H" 1st Regt. R. I. Lt. Arty. After a very stormy voyage of nineteen days, during which time it lost 60 horses, on February 8 the battery put in at Fortress Monroe, disembarked, and remained at Camp Hamilton near Hampton, Va., for about six weeks. Again setting sail and being greatly delayed by calms, after a long voyage it reached New Orleans on the 10th of May and was quartered at Apollo Stables.

About June 1, 1863, a detachment of 40 men went to Fort Banks where it remained four days. The battery horses being turned over to Captain Miller of the 12th Mass. Batty., the men of the 13th embarked, June 5, for Springfield Landing on the Mississippi, from whence they marched to the front of Port Hudson. The command was here divided into two wings each of which took charge of four siege mortars, one detachment under Captain Hamlin being posted on the left centre, the other under Lieutenant Terry being stationed near the extreme right. Here they remained for a full month keeping up mortar fire until the city surrendered. On July 9, the day of the formal surrender, the command entered the city. Here the men suffered much from sickness and a number died.

On August 27 Captain Hamlin was sent to Massachusetts on recruiting service, and, Lieutenant Terry having resigned, Lieutenant Motte was left in command of the battery. On August 31, the battery having been reduced by sickness and other causes to but 50 effective men, it was ordered to New Orleans and the men were attached to the 2d Massachusetts Battery, Captain Nims. It accompanied this battery on the Teche expedition in the fall of 1863, leaving Algiers, September 19, and proceeding by rail to Brashear City. Ten days later it marched via Berwick City to Fort Bisland, thence on via Vermillion Bayou, Carrion Crow Bayou, and Barre's Landing to Opelousas, having frequent skirmishes along the way.

Leaving Opelousas on the retrograde movement November 1, rear guard actions took place at Carrion Crow Bayou, November 2, and at Grand Couteau, November 3, and on the 18th the command reached New Iberia. Here it remained until January 8, 1864, when it proceeded to Franklin and went into winter quarters. On February 17, 1864, the men of the 13th were transferred to the 6th Massachusetts Battery, Captain Phelps, remaining with this command until March 6, when they were transferred to Batty. "L" 1st U. S. Arty.

With this battery they took part in the Red River expedition in the spring of 1864. On March 15 they left Franklin, passing over the old route through Opelousas and reaching Alexandria, March 25. Continuing its march on the 28th, it reached Natchitoches, April 3. Proceeding on to Pleasant Hill it was there engaged with the enemy April 9, suffering slight loss. Returning to Grand Ecore on April 11, after a week spent there the command returned to Alexandria whence it set out via Simmsport for Morganzia on the Mississippi. Thence it was transferred by boat to New Orleans, arriving at Apollo Stables, June 29.

On July 1, the 13th, again an independent command, was equipped with four guns and a month later was assigned to duty at Camp Parapet where it remained until its term of enlistment ended. The battery returned to Massachusetts in July, 1865, and on the 28th of that month was mustered out of the United States service.

FOURTEENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 14th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was organized under Special Order No. 48, A. G. O. Mass., dated January 14, 1864. In this order Joseph W. B. Wright of Boston, who had served in the 1st Batty. Lt. Arty. M. V. M. (3 months), the 1st Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. (3 years), and Co. "L" 2d Regt. Mass. Vol. Hy. Arty., was designated as captain, and the battery was ordered into camp at Readville.

Captain Philip Tyler had been transferred from the 13th Battery in December, 1863, but his efforts to recruit the 14th Battery failed, and his commission was cancelled, hence his personal record does not appear in the roster of the officers of either organization.

Most of the officers of the 14th Battery were commissioned on the 25th of February and the enlisted men were mustered in two days later. Ordered to Annapolis, Md., April 4, it proceeded thither and from there to Washington, D. C., where it was quartered at Camp Marshall. Here on April 22 and 24 it received its guns and horses, and on the 26th crossed the Long Bridge and joined the 9th Corps, being assigned to Stevenson's (2d) Division. The Rappahannock River was reached April 30 and was crossed May 4 when the 9th Corps started for the Wilderness. The Rapidan was crossed by the battery May 5, and it remained in reserve during the battle of the Wilderness, it being impossible to use much artillery owing to the wooded character of the country.

At Spottsylvania, May 10, it was in action near the Ny River, and on the 12th it crossed the Ny and was heavily engaged in repulsing an attack of the enemy. Here the battery lost five men wounded. Genl. Thomas G. Stevenson commanding the 2d Division was killed on the 10th.

The battery next moved to the North Anna River arriving May 23. On this day it lost two men captured, both of whom died in Andersonville prison. From the 24th to the 26th inclusive the battery was in action without loss. Proceeding via the Pamunkey River toward Cold Harbor, it was engaged near the Totopotomoy, June 1, and at Bethesda Church, June 2 and 3. It was under fire on the Cold Harbor front from the 6th to the 12th when it started for the James River. Crossing on June 14, it moved to the Petersburg front where it went into action on the 17th. From the 21st to the 24th it was again engaged losing two men killed and one mortally wounded. Early in July it was in a movement to the Weldon Railroad, returning on the 9th. It was now in various positions until July 30 when it was stationed in front of the Crater fort, being designated to follow up the column of assault, if the attack should prove successful.

On August 21 it was sharply engaged losing two men killed and two mortally wounded. Detached from the 9th Corps September 1, it was transferred to the Reserve Artillery of the Army of the Potomac and was stationed at several places in the rear near the City Point road and Prince George Court House. On October 1 it was assigned to the 2d Corps and returned to the front. On the 25th it was transferred to Fort Merriam in the defenses of City Point where it remained until midwinter.

On January 15 the battery was assigned to the 6th Corps and went into camp near the Weldon Railroad. From February 9 to March 15 it was posted at Fort Welch on the Union left. It was now returned to the 9th Corps, one section being posted in Battery X near Fort Stedman and the other in Battery XIV near Fort Haskell. When Fort Stedman was captured in the early morning of March 25 the section in Battery X fell into the enemy's hands after a determined resistance in which Lieutenant Nye was killed, four men wounded, and 11 taken prisoners. But by the mid forenoon the guns were retaken and Fort Stedman was recaptured with many prisoners.

On March 29 and again on April 1 and 2 the battery was heavily engaged in the bombardment of Petersburg and in supporting the assault of April 2. After the evacuation of the city April 3, it withdrew from the front and joined the Reserve Artillery at City Point. Here it remained a month, then marched to Fairfax Seminary near Washington where it remained until the 4th of June. Returning to Massachusetts, it reached Readville, June 6, and here June 15, 1865, the men were mustered out of the United States service.

FIFTEENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 15th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty. was recruited during the winter of 1862-63. partly at the Fair Grounds in Lowell, Mass., and partly at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor. The men were mustered in on various dates, the greater number on February 17, 1863. On March 9, under command of Capt. Timothy Pearson, it left Boston on the ship ZOUAVE and, after touching at Fortress Monroe, proceeded to New Orleans to join the expedition commanded by General Banks.

Disembarking April 9, it was quartered at Apollo Stables. By May 15 it had been partially equipped as light artillery, but on the 20th it was ordered to turn in its horses and equipment and proceed to Brashear City. After about a week at this place it returned to New Orleans, and on June 3 it was sent to garrison two small forts on the road and railroad to Lake Ponchartrain. Here the detachments remained until December 29 when they left the forts and proceeded to Lakeport.

On January 2, 1864, the battery embarked on the steamer KATE DALE and went on an expedition to Madisonville near the northern boundary of Lake Ponchartrain. After six weeks spent on this steamer about February 15 the battery returned to Lakeport and thence to New Orleans. From May 5 to October 17 the battery was at Terrell's Press. On or about the last named date it proceeded under command of Lieutenant Rowse up the Mississippi to the mouth of White River, Arkansas, and thence on November 7 up the White River to Duvall's Bluff where it remained twenty days. It was then transferred to Memphis, Tenn. where it spent the month of December. About this time, having received a large number of recruits, the surplus was transferred to the 6th Battery.

From January 5, 1865, to February 13 the battery was stationed at Kennerville, La. Toward the last of February it was transferred to Barrancas, Fla., where it was assigned to the 2d Division, 13th Corps which was to join General Steele's expedition against Mobile. Proceeding to Pensacola, March 11, on the 20th the movement toward Mobile began. The 15th Battery participated in the siege of Fort Blakely from April 2 to 9 when the stronghold surrendered, and Mobile itself soon fell into the hands of the Union forces.

On April 20, 1865, the 2d Division, of which the 15th Battery formed a part, proceeded by transports to Selma, Ala., near the centre of the State, where it remained until May 11, then returned to Mobile. Remaining here for about six weeks, on June 30 it turned in its guns and horses and proceeded to Fort Gaines on Mobile Bay. On July 20 it was ordered to Massachusetts. Reaching Readville, Mass., August 1, on the 4th of the month the men were mustered out of the United States service.

SIXTEENTH BATTERY MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER LIGHT ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 16th Batty. Mass. Vol. Lt. Arty., the last light battery raised in Massachusetts, was recruited at Camp Meigs, Readville, in the early part of 1864. Most of the officers and men were mustered into the service March 11, and on the 17th of April the men were ordered to proceed to Washington.

Leaving Massachusetts, April 19, under command of Capt. Henry D. Scott, formerly a first lieutenant in the 5th Battery, two days later the capital was reached, and the battery reported to Maj. James A. Hall at Camp Barry near the Bladensburg Toll Gate on the northeasterly outskirts of Washington. Here on the 29th of April it received a full equipment of horses and 3 inch guns. About the middle of May it was sent to Fort Thayer, one of the northerly defenses of Washington, where it remained for about a week, when it returned to Camp Barry.

On June 1, having turned in its guns and horses, two sections were sent to Fort Lyon and one to Fort Weed southwest of Alexandria, Va., where they were drilled as heavy artillery. On July 10, when Early with a large Confederate force was menacing Washington, the command was ordered to Fort Reno near Tennallytown on the northwesterly outskirts of the District of Columbia, but on arriving was assigned to duty in Fort Kearney. Here the men remained two days, until the Confederate force had withdrawn from the front of the capital, after which they returned to their old station at Camp Barry.

On July 13 the command was again equipped with four 12 pounders and horses and remained at Camp Barry most of the time until September 5, when it was ordered to Albany, N. Y. There it was stationed at the Troy Road Barracks until November 16, when it entrained for Washington, and on the 19th was again quartered at Camp Barry. Here, November 26, it received two more 12 pounders giving it now the full complement of a six gun battery.

On December 16 the battery crossed the Potomac and proceeded to Fairfax Court House, where it reported to Col. William Gamble commanding the 1st Separate Brigade. One section was then sent to Vienna on the Loudon and Hampshire Railroad and one to Fairfax Station on the Orange and Alexandria Railroad, while the other section with the battery headquarters remained at Fairfax Court House on the Little River Turnpike midway between the other two. Here the battery remained doing picket and guard duty during the winter of 1864-65.

In March, 1865, it accompanied the 8th Illinois Cavalry on an expedition into Loudon Valley, returning to Fairfax Court House where it remained until June 17 when it received orders to proceed to Massachusetts. On the 18th it marched to Washington, and turned in its guns and equipment, and on the following day entrained for New York. Remaining over night at the New England Rooms in that city it then continued on its journey home. On June 22 the men arrived at their old rendezvous at Camp Meigs, Readville, where on the 27th they were mustered out of the United States service. However, delays occurred so that it was not until the 13th of July that they were finally paid off and disbanded.

FIRST REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER HEAVY ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The 1st Regt. Mass. Vol. Hy. Arty. was a reorganization of the 14th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. which was raised in Essex County in the summer of 1861. By Special Order No. 309, dated June 20, 1861, the various companies composing the 14th Regt. were directed to report at Fort Warren, Boston Harbor. Here the regimental organization was completed, and here on the 5th day of July the men were formally mustered into the United States service. William B. Greene of Haverhill, Mass., a West Point graduate, was commissioned colonel.

On Aug. 7 the Regiment left the State under orders to proceed to Harper's Ferry, but when it had arrived near Baltimore the orders were changed, and Washington City was named as its destination. This place was reached late in the evening, Aug. 10, and on the following afternoon the regiment was sent to Camp Kalorama on Meridian Heights north of the city.

After about a week at Camp Kalorama Colonel Greene was ordered to move his regiment across the Potomac to Fort Albany near Arlington. Here the regiment did garrison duty, furnishing details also for Forts Runyon and Jackson in the same vicinity.

Late in the year 1861 it was decided to enlarge the regiment and change it from infantry to heavy artillery. The change was officially accomplished under Special Order No. 1, War Department, dated Jan. 2, 1862, but the designation was not formally changed to 1st Regt. Mass. Vol. Hy. Arty. until the issue of Special Order No. 421, War Department, dated Sept. 19, 1863.

During the winter of 1861-62 the old companies were increased by the addition of 50 men each, and two new companies, "L" and "M," were recruited and their members mustered into the service during February and March, 1862. The entire regiment was employed during the spring and summer of 1862 in the defenses of Washington as a part of the command of Genl. James S. Wadsworth, garrisoning forts, strengthening fortifications, and doing other similar duties.

One diversion occurred during the latter part of August when the entire regiment marched to Cloud's Mills and beyond, finally advancing to a point a mile west of Fairfax Court House, and returning on the 29th to the forts near Arlington.

About the 27th of September, 1862, Companies "H" and "I" were sent under command of Major Rolfe to Maryland Heights near Harper's Ferry where they were joined in October by Co. "C" and in December by Co. "B." Here they were occupied in repairing the fortifications and their armament which were destroyed and abandoned by a part of the force under Col. D. S. Miles during the Antietam campaign. Here this battalion remained until the midsummer of 1863 when, during the Gettysburg campaign Company "I" was sent to Winchester to report to General Milroy. On Milroy's evacuation of Winchester Captain Martin and Company "I" were left behind to spike the guns in the forts and destroy the ammunition, and in the performance of this duty the brave captain and 44 of his men were taken prisoners.

The remainder of the battalion was engaged in like duty at Maryland Heights and Fort

Duncan, loading the best of the guns on canal boats and sending them down the Potomac, and destroying everything else of military value, in order to prevent the possibility of their falling into the hands of Lee's army which was then invading Maryland and Pennsylvania. After the retreat of the Confederate army into Virginia, Major Rolfe's battalion was sent back to Maryland Heights to restore the fortifications and to re-equip them with new guns received from Washington. Here the battalion remained until Nov. 30, 1863, when it was relieved and ordered to report to the regiment in front of Washington.

Colonel Greene having resigned in October, 1862, the command of the regiment had been given to Col. Thomas R. Tannatt formerly of the 16th Regiment. The eight companies left in front of Washington continued their duty of garrisoning forts on the Virginia side of the Potomac, and from the time of the return of Major Rolfe's battalion in November, 1863, until the middle of May, 1864, the entire regiment was similarly employed. It was also engaged in repairing fortifications, building military roads, etc.

On May 14, 1864, the order came to join the Army of the Potomac. Conveyed by transports from Alexandria to Belle Plain, here on the 16th the regiment was assigned to Tyler's Division of heavy artillery, Colonel Tannatt commanding the 2d Brigade to which it was attached. On the 17th Tyler's Division marched to a position in front of the Confederate lines near Spottsylvania Court House, becoming a part of Hancock's (2d) Corps.

The battle of Harris Farm, near Spottsylvania, May 19, 1864, was the regiment's first major engagement. Here in a severe fight with Ewell's Corps in the fields to the west of the Harris farmhouse on the afternoon of that day it lost Major Rolfe and 54 men killed, 312 officers and men wounded, and 27 missing. Major Rolfe, who led the 1st Battalion in the action, fell pierced by eleven bullets.

At North Anna River, May 23-25, the regiment was in reserve and suffered no loss. In the Totopotomoy and Cold Harbor operations, May 31-June 12, the losses of the 1st Heavy were slight. Crossing the James on June 14, the regiment was engaged in the assault on the Petersburg intrenchments June 16, losing 25 killed, 132 wounded, and five missing. From the 17th to the 20th inclusive it suffered a further loss of four killed and over 50 wounded.

On June 22, while engaged in a movement to the left, it shared in the disaster to the 2d Corps, being assailed in flank and losing 10 killed, 46 wounded, and 179 captured. Among the killed was Captain Kimball.

Early in July the original members of the regiment were mustered out, their term of service having expired, and on the 8th they started for home. Ten days later Colonel Tannatt resigned.

The remnant of the regiment, about 200 men, was engaged in both expeditions to Deep Bottom in the summer of 1864, suffering only small loss. From this time until April, 1865, it was employed on the lines in front of Petersburg. In December it was called upon for special duty, joining the 5th Corps in a movement against the Weldon Railroad, and early in February, 1865, it took part in the expedition to Hatcher's Run.

On April 2 it was stationed near the Boydton Plank road and joined in the assault which broke the Confederate lines and forced the evacuation of Petersburg. Pursuing the retreating enemy by way of High Bridge, it had reached a point within two miles of Appomattox Court House when Lee surrendered.

After the surrender the regiment moved to Burkeville, whence, on May 2, it set out on its march northward, arriving at Bailey's Cross Roads within the defenses of Washington, May 15, exactly one year after it had started to join the Army of the Potomac. Early in June it was assigned the duty of garrisoning Forts Ethan Allen and Macy, and later in the month it was transferred to Forts Strong and C. F. Smith. On July 31 it was consolidated into a battalion of four companies and the supernumeraries were mustered out. All the remaining officers and men were mustered out Aug. 16, and on the following day they took transportation for Massachusetts. Arriving in Boston, Aug. 20, the battalion remained in camp at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor, until Aug. 25, when the men were paid off and discharged.

In addition to all other casualties 178 of the officers and men of the regiment had died in Confederate prisons.

SECOND REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER HEAVY ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

The recruiting of the 2d Regt. Mass. Vol. Hy. Arty. was authorized by Governor Andrew as early as May, 1863, and Major Jones Frankle of the 17th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf. was designated as its colonel. It was originally intended as a veteran regiment to be recruited from the members of nine months organizations whose terms of service were about to expire, but in the end its recruits were gathered from a much wider field.

At its rendezvous, Camp Meigs, Readville, recruiting proceeded slowly through the summer and fall of 1863. In July and August, Companies "A", "B", "C", and "D" were enlisted and mustered into the service, and on Sept. 5, these four companies sailed from Boston on the steamer GUIDE bound for Newbern, N. C. Companies "E" and "F" were mustered largely in October and were sent, Nov. 7, to the same destination. The remaining six companies, "G", "H", "I", "K", "L", and "M", were mustered in December, and were sent to Fort Monroe to report to General Butler.

The six companies sent to Newbern were assigned to do guard and garrison duty at various places in eastern North Carolina, while the last six were held during the fall and winter in the vicinity of Norfolk. The monthly reports for March, 1864, show that Companies "A" and "D" were stationed at Fort Macon, N. C., Company "B" at Newport Barracks, Company "C" at Morehead City, Companies "G" and "H" at Plymouth, N. C., and Companies "I", "K", "L", and "M" at Norfolk, Va.

After a brave resistance Companies "G" and "H" at Plymouth, N. C., were made prisoners almost to a man on April 20 by a Confederate force under General Hoke, about 275 being carried into captivity, a very large majority of whom died in Confederate prisons.

In May, 1864, of the eight companies in North Carolina, all were at Newbern excepting Company "B", which was still at Newport Barracks, while the companies in Virginia were stationed near Portsmouth. The headquarters of the regiment were now at Newbern. In July all the companies with the exception of "B" and "K" were at Newbern.

During the months of August and September a large number of recruits arrived, raising the total number of men in the regiment to nearly 2000. By various orders of the War Department, issued during the winter of 1864-65, all the men in excess of the legal maximum standard, about 435 in number, were transferred to the 17th Regt. Mass. Vol. Inf.

In the fall of 1864 an epidemic of yellow fever visited Newbern, and the 2d Hy. Arty. lost a large number of men who contracted the disease while doing guard duty in the stricken city.

At the beginning of the year 1865 six companies, "B", "C", "F", "G", "I", and "M", were in the vicinity of Newbern, N. C., four, "A", "D", "E", and "H", were at Plymouth, N. C., while Companies "K" and "L" were in Virginia. These two companies joined the main body at Newbern in April.

Meanwhile on the 8th of March, 1865, Companies "B", "C", "F", "I", and "M" had participated in the battle of South West Creek, near Kinston, losing five men killed, 20 wounded, and two missing.

June, 1865, found the entire regiment at Camp Chattanooga, near Newbern. In July it was transferred to Wilmington, N. C., and during the month of August it garrisoned Fort Fisher and other defenses of the Cape Fear River.

On Sept. 2 the regiment was ordered home, and on the following day, Sept. 3, it was mustered out of the service and embarked for Boston. Arriving at Galloup's Island, Boston Harbor, Sept. 15, on the 23d the regiment was disbanded and the members departed for their homes.

THIRD REGIMENT MASSACHUSETTS VOLUNTEER HEAVY ARTILLERY

THREE YEARS

During the year 1863, eight companies of heavy artillery were recruited for use in garrisoning the forts on the Massachusetts coast. These companies were at first designated by numbers and were mustered into the United States service as follows—the 3d Company in January, 1864, the 6th Company in May, the 7th, 8th, and 9th Companies in August, the 10th Company in September, the 11th Company in October, and the 12th Company in November.

They were distributed at first for the most part at the forts and islands in Boston Harbor, the 6th Company, however, being at New Bedford, the 11th at Gloucester, and the 12th at Salem.

In the spring of 1864, these eight companies were transferred to Washington, D. C., where they were assigned to do guard and garrison duty in the defenses of the capital, thereby releasing the more experienced troops, who had been performing that service, for duty at the front. Their places were taken in the forts on the Massachusetts coast by the unattached companies of infantry, whose history has been recited in an earlier portion of this work.

When these first eight companies were raised it was quite distinctly stated in handbills and verbally by those engaged in the work of recruiting that they would be used only for garrison duty in Massachusetts. Hence a great deal of dissatisfaction was caused by their transfer to the defenses of Washington, and many letters and petitions of protest against that transfer were made, numbers of which are still on file in the archives of The Adjutant General's Office.

Governor Andrew was very anxious that these companies should be given a regimental status, and in order to carry that into effect four more companies, the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th were raised and mustered into the service, the 13th in February, 1864, the 14th and 15th in May, and the 16th in August. Finally, the proper authorization having been obtained from the War Department, by Special Order No. 1087, dated Sept. 8, 1864, the 3d Regt. Mass. Vol. Hy. Arty. was organized, the companies being arranged in their numerical order and being lettered from "A" to "M" respectively.

The regiment was commanded by Col. William S. Abert, a graduate of West Point, and was divided into three battalions commanded respectively by Majors John A. P. Allen, George S. Worcester, and Lyman B. Whiton. With the exception of Company "I" the duties performed by the various units were not materially different from what they had been before they were given a regimental status. They were scattered in the forts around Washington, D. C., and there remained until their muster out.

Company "I", nominally a part of the 3d Battalion, had an experience entirely different from that of the other companies. It was recruited largely from mechanics employed at the National Armory in Springfield, Mass., and was employed as an engineer corps. It never served with the rest of the regiment, but was at once assigned to duty under Capt. F. N. Farquhar, U. S. Corps of Engineers, and was placed in charge of the pontoons of the Army of the James. After a few weeks of drill and practice the men of Company "I" became expert pontooniers.

They built two pontoon bridges across the Appomattox River, connecting the Armies of the Potomac and the James, two across the James River below Chaffin's Bluff, and in April, 1865, constructed the pontoon bridge at Farmville, which was used by the 2d and 6th Corps in the pursuit of Lee's fleeing army. It later built the bridge at Richmond by which the Union armies crossed the James River on their way to Washington after the war was done. In addition it ran captured saw mills, built wharves and roads, and performed engineer duty in general.

Company "M" was mustered out June 17, 1865. Ten more companies were mustered out on the 18th of September, but Company "I", the engineer company, was held in service until the 26th of September.
